5 THINGS TO KNOW

WELCOME TO METRO PHILLY

MOLLY GIVEN, PHILADELPHIA FEATURES EDITOR
The Philadelphia Flyers' season may have started on Thursday, but the home opener is right around the corner, on Tuesday. This season promises to be a big one for the city's resident hockey team, but if you don't have tickets to the opener, you're in luck: There are plenty of Philly bars and restaurants to choose from that are showing the game and even offering specials in honor of the orange and black. See the list on Pages 18-19 and on metro.us.

20 DEAD IN UPSTATE NY WEDDING LIMO CRASH

1 Twenty people were killed in rural upstate New York when a limousine collided with another vehicle, New York State Police said on Sunday. The crash occurred just before 2 p.m. on Saturday afternoon in Schoharie, about 38 miles west of Albany, on Route 30. The limousine sped through an intersection and drove into a parking lot outside an Apple Barrel Country Store, striking a vehicle and two pedestrians. All limousine passengers were killed, as well as the driver and the pedestrians, state police said. Local media reported the limousine was carrying a wedding party. It was the deadliest transportation accident in the United States since a 2009 plane crash in Buffalo, New York, that killed 49 people, said National Transportation Safety Board Chairman Robert Sumwalt. The victims were transported to Albany Medical Center, where autopsies will be conducted. New York Governor Andrew Cuomo released a statement Sunday thanking first responders for working on the scene through the night. "My heart breaks for the 20 people who lost their lives in this horrific accident on Saturday in Schoharie," Cuomo said.

POMPEO: MORE NEEDS TO BE DONE WITH N. KOREA

2 North Korean leader Kim Jong Un and U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo agreed to arrange a second leaders summit "as soon as possible," and discussed potential U.S. monitoring of Pyongyang's steps toward denuclearization, South Korea's presidential office said on Sunday. Pompeo said his latest, fourth trip to Pyongyang was "another step forward" to denuclearization and he had a "good, productive conversation" with Kim, but more needed to be done. South Korean President Moon Jae-in held talks with Pompeo in Seoul after the top U.S. diplomat met with Kim for more than three hours. Pompeo's trip to Pyongyang happened amid negative signals from North Korea, whose actions have fallen short of Washington's demands for a complete inventory of its nuclear weapons and irreversible steps to give up an arsenal that potentially threatens the United States. Pompeo said he and Kim discussed denuclearization steps to be taken by the North and the issue of U.S. government monitoring of those actions, which Washington sees as vital, as well as the measures the United States would conduct in return, Moon's office said.

KATT WILLIAMS ARRESTED IN OREGON ASSAULT

4 Emmy-winning comedian Katt Williams was arrested for allegedly assaulting a limousine driver at a Portland, Oregon airport in a confrontation over the transportation of the celebrity's dog, authorities said on Sunday. Airport police said Williams, 47, got into an argument late on Friday with the driver after Williams asked for a ride with his dog from a private aviation terminal to a performance center in the city. "The victim sustained minor injuries to the face including swelling and cuts," a police report said. Williams left the scene in another vehicle. He was found on Saturday and booked on a fourth-degree assault charge, the report said. Williams has not spoken to the media about the incident, and a publicist for him was not immediately available for comment. The case has been referred to the Multnomah County District Attorney's Office for prosecution, police said. Earlier this year, Williams won an Emmy Award for Outstanding Guest Actor in a Comedy Series for his appearance in the show "Atlanta." Local news reports said Williams was in Portland to perform a comedy show.

'MICHAEL' LOOMS IN GULF, COULD BECOME HURRICANE

5 A tropical depression became Tropical Storm Michael on Sunday and may become a hurricane by midweek, potentially bringing storm surges and heavy rainfall to the U.S. Gulf Coast, the U.S. National Hurricane Center (NHC) said. The storm was about 225 miles southwest of the western tip of Cuba at 2 p.m. Eastern Time, with sustained winds of 40 mph, the National Weather Service said. The system is set to bring heavy rain and flash flooding to areas of Central America, western Cuba and Mexico's Yucatan peninsula as early as Sunday night. Michael could become a hurricane by Tuesday night or Wednesday, the NHC said in a Sunday afternoon advisory. A tropical storm warning is in effect for the Cuban provinces of Pinar del Rio and the Isle of Youth and the eastern coast of Mexico from Tulum to Cabo Catoche, including Cozumel. Winds were forecast to drop in intensity as the system tracks northeast over Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina, reaching North Carolina by Thursday. The Commodity Weather Group said on Sunday there might be some precautionary evacuation of oil rigs in the area affected by the storm, which may slow down operations but not likely cause much interruption.

Philly Councilman Allan Domb proposes to reform DROP

DROP, the infamous Philly pension program, must be circumscribed, Domb said.

City Councilman-at-Large Allan Domb introduced legislation to limit the DROP program. PROVIDED

Local citizens have been complaining about the DROP pension program for city employees that critics say wastes taxpayer dollars. Now, City Councilman Allan Domb wants to do something about it.

"We have a Rolls-Royce pension program, but we have a Buick budget," said Domb, who recently introduced legislation to City Council which would block future non-union employees from enrolling in DROP. (The bill would not affect union employees). "It's a very generous pension benefit that we cannot afford. I'm not saying it's good or bad — I'm just saying we can't afford it."

Philadelphia's "Deferred Retirement Option Plan" (DROP), introduced in 1999 under Mayor Ed Rendell ostensibly to help the city retain end-of-career municipal employees, was originally pitched as costing nothing. But a study by Boston College in 2014 estimated the program cost the city's underfunded pensions debt some $237 million.

Domb, a real estate developer and freshman city councilman-at-large who is donating his salary to the School District, said the pension fund is one of Philadelphia's most significant challenges. He said the city needs to be fiscally responsible and address long-term issues now.

"My motivation for this is to deal with probably our most serious fiscal challenge that confronts us, and that is the pension liability, which is over $6.1 billion unfunded," Domb said. (The full pension liability is roughly $11.2 billion). "On top of that, we have another $1.9 billion of post-employment benefits that includes medical insurance."

Domb said that barring new, non-union employees from DROP is one way to start chipping away at the problem. Only Mayor Jim Kenney's administration can negotiate with union employees over DROP.

"We are still reviewing the legislation, and look forward to further discussions with Councilman Domb and all council members on the proposal," Kenney spokesman Mike Dunn said via email.

The original idea behind programs like DROP was to incentivize police officers and firefighters to stick on the job a little longer. But in Philly, DROP was given to all city employees by the Rendell administration. Interest rates were originally pegged at 4.85 percent.

FRED SCHILLING, COLLECTION OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

Dems urge voters to focus Kav anger on election

Two Democratic senators on Sunday said voters angry that Republicans confirmed Brett Kavanaugh to the Supreme Court despite allegations of sexual misconduct should focus on next month's congressional elections instead of seeking to impeach the new justice.

Some Democrats in the House of Representatives have indicated Kavanaugh could face investigations or even potential impeachment if they win majorities in the House and possibly the Senate. But Senators Chris Coons and Mazie Hirono distanced themselves from those demands, saying they are concentrating on the Nov. 6 congressional elections.

"I think that's premature," Coons said of impeachment talk on NBC's "Meet the Press." "Frankly we are just less than a month away from an election. Folks who feel very strongly one way or other about the issues in front of us should get out and vote and participate."

Kavanaugh was sworn in late on Saturday amid protests at the court after he was narrowly confirmed in a 50-48 Senate vote.

President Donald Trump said the public protests against Kavanaugh were the work of "an angry left-wing mob" and has urged his supporters to vote in November.

Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell said on Saturday that "nothing unifies Republicans like a court fight."

With both parties focusing on the confirmation battle, it is unclear who will capitalize on it most effectively in the elections.

Hirono, speaking on ABC's "This Week," said, "I'm focused like a laser beam on the elections" when asked about impeachment.

"I'm very focused on the here and now, which is that all these angry women, mainly, out there saw what was going on and how the Senate was not able to deal with the entire issue of sexual assault," she said.

Noting that only one Supreme Court justice has ever been impeached, Coons said the Senate needed to show leadership and seek to heal the country. REUTERS

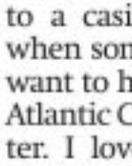
Fieri brings Flavortown to Chester casino

Food Network personality Guy Fieri reopens Guy Fieri's Philly Kitchen + Bar at Harrah's Philadelphia.



A.D. AMOROSI

"Who doesn't love going to a casino? Who balks when someone asks, 'You want to hit Las Vegas?' Or Atlantic City, for that matter. I love casinos, man. That's where the action is."

That's Guy Fieri talking, he being the SoCal-raised, Vegas-trained chef, restaurateur, author and Food Network personality (on shows such as "Diners, Drive-ins and Dives" and "Guy's Grocery Games") who last week reopened Guy Fieri's Philly Kitchen + Bar at Harrah's Philadelphia Casino and Racetrack.

If anyone knows where the action is, it's this adrenaline junkie who, days after rapping, in person, about his revamped and Philly-centric Harrah's menu, was spied on the sidelines of the New England Patriots whooping it up. If anything is worth whooping about, it's the Chester, Pa., casino. A mere 27-minute drive from downtown Philly, this Harrah's is still one of the area's best-kept secrets, with its own horse-racing track you can witness live from Fieri's Philly Kitchen's large windows. "This is what a casino restaurant should always be," said Fieri, as dusk's sunlight bounces off a large, chunky silver ring on his finger.

Fieri's rough-edged "Diners, Drive-ins and Dives" brought the full-flavored chef to Philly early on in its run, with a visit to Spring Garden Street's Silk City. "I fell in love with Philly then," said Fieri, who skateboarded to the Art Museum, ran the steps, and ogled the "Rocky" statue with his son. "To be in a city with so much history and culture was the coolest. So fast-forward to this offer to do Harrah's and it's, where do you sign? Because I'm a blue-collar guy from a blue-collar family, this is a blue-collar community, and THAT is what the food here is talking about — that, enthusiasm and playfulness."

The casino game? Fieri studied hospitality at the University of Nevada in Las Vegas ("My son is in the same program now") and the racy allure of that town never left his blood. "You'll never run into anyone who doesn't like to be entertained, and that's the spirit of Vegas," he said.

Important and truly individual (despite the similarity in logos, no Fieri space is like the other in the food department, so as not to tire the brand), Guy Fieri's Philly Kitchen + Bar is based on local flavors, with a twist.

"The last thing I wanted to serve was a cheesesteak," said Fieri. "That's like singing Sinatra songs in front of Sinatra. You have to have the right flavors and the right environment for a traditional cheesesteak: elbow-to-elbow, standing up, with 50 other people doing the same right next to you."

What his Philly Kitchen + Bar is doing is a cheesesteak burger and two versions of a sliced prime rib cheesesteak, one done "Guy's Way," with several cheeses and garlic-buttered hoagie rolls.

"Since this community identifies, like me, as Italian, we're doing this big-eats plate, a Chicken 'Parm-eroni,' because you love chicken parm, and I'm sure as hell certain no one wouldn't love a huge slice of fried pepperoni on it."

Arrests made after UFC post-fight brawl

UFC lightweight champ Khabib Nurmagomedov stopped Conor McGregor to retain his title Saturday night.

Chaos erupted after Khabib Nurmagomedov retained his UFC lightweight title with a submission victory over Ireland's Conor McGregor on Saturday, with members of his support team arrested after an all-in brawl broke out after the bout.

The Russian ended McGregor's attempt to win back the title when he sealed a brutal submission victory with a rear naked choke hold in the fourth round, which then sparked a mass brawl.

Fights broke out in and around the cage, with a red-shirted fan landing several blows on McGregor before security intervened. Both fighters were escorted from the arena by police and security.

UFC boss Dana White later told Fox Sports that three members of Nurmagomedov's team were arrested.

The fight had been highlighted by bad blood between both camps, with McGregor pleading guilty in July as part of a deal with prosecutors to resolve charges over an April melee in which he attacked a bus the Russian was traveling on.

The situation boiled over after referee Herb Dean waved off the fight, which prompted Nurmagomedov to jump out of the cage and head straight for McGregor's teammate and corner-man Dillon Danis, prompting a series of violent scuffles.

One man jumped the fence, swinging blows at McGregor before being bundled away by security, and there were punches thrown in the crowd as police and security struggled to deal with the angry crowd, most of whom had been backing the Irishman.

White entered the octagon to try to placate Nurmagomedov, who was not presented with the belt, although he was announced as the winner.

The Russian's fans chanted his name and danced in the street outside the T-Mobile Arena, but rather than the fight bringing to an end the feud, it only poured more fuel on the fire.

McGregor, making a comeback to the octagon after nearly two years away, had looked dangerous in the early striking exchanges but as expected, Nurmagomedov quickly took the fight to the ground.

The Russian smothered him with his wrestling skills and prevented him from getting back to his feet for the rest of the first round.

The Irishman was then wobbled by an early right cross from the Russian in the second round and the fight was soon on the floor again, but this time the Russian champion was able to keep the challenger from getting his back to the cage.

McGregor survived until the end of the round, giving a tired smile as the horn went, and in the third period he managed to keep the fight standing, tripping off shots to the head and body as he rediscovered his range.

However, it proved to be too little, too late, and Nurmagomedov was once again on top in the fourth, sapping McGregor's energy with his excruciating pressure before the choke ended the fight 3:03 into the fourth round.

Despite McGregor tapping his arm to indicate his submission, Nurmagomedov seemed to hold on to the winning choke rather than releasing it, encapsulating the bad blood between the pair.

Philly Trans March walks in remembrance

Protesters at Philly Trans March on Saturday, Oct. 6, 2018. REESE AMOROSI

The 2018 iteration of the Philly Trans March was dedicated to the unsolved murders of trans women.

A.D. AMOROSI

When Christian Lovehall, a black trans man and activist from South Philadelphia, created the Philly Trans March in 2011, he did so in reaction to the (still) unsolved 2010 slaying of Stacey Blahnik, a transgender woman of color and a beloved member of that community. At the time, Lovehall and trans men and women of color, along with their brothers and sisters in the LGBTQ/non-binary communities, marched for justice, not solely for Blahnik but for every trans woman and man who worried for their safety and fought for their freedom.

"From the start, I wanted to create a voice for marginalized communities," said Lovehall on Oct. 6. Issues such as unsolved cases, hate violence, the lack of official concern and resources for trans, non-binary and gender non-conforming youth and elders were on his mind.

On a gray, breezy Saturday, LGBTQ protestors (200+ according to police supervisors on the parade route, 600 according to the Trans Equity Project Facebook page) along with straight men, women and children walked in the Philly Trans March for trans rights issues like employment discrimination and misgendered identification.

"We're here, we're queer, we're fabulous, don't f— with us," and "Transphobia has got to go," were but two of the large crowd's chants.

They were also marching for justice and the right to walk the streets unharmed — not only in the name of Blahnik, but Shantee Tucker, a transgender woman of color fatally shot in September.

"I think the march raises awareness about the issues that trans people have daily, and lets the families of those whose murders go unsolved [know] that there is community behind them," said Lovehall. "We have their back."

Saturday's Philly Trans March started in Love Park with speakers such as Malik Moorer, partner of Stacey Blahnik. The march moved through Mid-Town Village in an attempt to peacefully disrupt its Fall Festival of food and music, and paced itself while moving up Broad Street toward City Hall (to the delight and chagrin of just-married wedding parties taking photos along the median).

"I'm here because too many people are dying," said Marian Rossi, a demonstrator from Northeast Philadelphia, along the March's route.

"We have people close to us who are trans, and we are here because they deserve love, safety and respect," said West Philly's Graham Stratton,

"We have been using your bathrooms without you even knowing it."

who brought his two children, aged 7 and 10.

Diane Smith of West Oak Lane, Tucker's aunt, was at the march with Tucker's mother, Wanda Bibbs, and other members of the family. Smith was proud of her niece, and was happy to meet some of her community members. "This is proof of the love that people have for Shantee," said Smith, who also claimed that the police have been errant in doing their job to find Tucker's murderers. "There are descriptions of the getaway car, and there are witness statements," said Smith in regard to pushing the Philly police to move quicker to resolution. "When God gives you an assignment, you see it through."

The March ended where it began, in Love Park, with songs from musical performer ICON and speeches from Trans Equity Project's Milan Sherry, who joked, "Can we get a round of applause for my feet?" before awarding her co-activist Lovehall with a plaque for his service. "Credit Christian with rallying the troops and taking the very real blows," said Sherry.

Saturday's Philly Trans March was a peaceful and loving display of unity and strength for the present and future of the area's trans population. "We're not always known for standing in solidarity with our black trans sisters but that changes now," said Lovehall. "T-men are here for you. We will walk you home from the club. We will take care of you."

The only glitch with Philly Trans March came at the very end of the program, when a self-identified "straight" woman hopped onstage, took hook hold of the microphone and said that "out of respect for God, trans people should only use their own bathrooms." After much booing from the crowd, Sherry grabbed back the mic and yelled, "We have been using your bathrooms without you even knowing it. This is what I get for giving somebody else the mic."

Banksy's 'Girl with Balloon' self-destructs at auction

GETTY IMAGES

A painting by mysterious British artist Banksy shred itself into pieces at the moment it sold for more than one million pounds at a London auction on Friday.

Onlookers gasped and laughed after the bottom half of "Girl with Balloon," one of Banksy's best-known works, was sucked into a shredder hidden in its frame as the hammer fell, auction house Sotheby's said.

The 12-year-old painting had just been sold for 1,042,000 pounds ($1.37 million) — matching Banksy's all-time record.

"It appears we just got Banksy-ed," Alex Branczik, senior director and head of contemporary art, said in a statement on Sotheby's website.

Banksy himself posted an Instagram picture of shocked attendees watching the painting disintegrate, with the caption: "Going, going, gone …"

Sotheby's said this was "certainly" the first time a work of art started to shred itself after coming under the hammer.

Video footage showed two men taking the painting away shortly after the sale, bits of the image hanging down from the bottom of the frame in strips.

The auction house was not immediately available for comment on the whereabouts of the painting's remains, or how its value might have changed in light of its self-destruction.

Banksy, whose real identity is unknown, is known for sharply ironic outdoor graffiti with political themes, including at Israel's barrier at the West Bank and Disneyland, where he painted a life-size figure of a Guantanamo Bay detainee.

Once a small-time graffiti artist from the English city of Bristol, Banksy's work has become hugely valuable. REUTERS

SNIFFLING MAGNIFIED
Excuse me, how do you leave the house without a tissue of any kind in a giant purse or briefcase?

Must be listen to the constant sniff, sniff, sniff, cough, cough, cough because you forgot? Or how about you don't use your hand to catch a few drops and then hold on to the pole. Geez Louise.

I carry plenty, and want to offer, but then I'm like what do you actually have in that giant purse or briefcase, that you don't have a single tissue? Use a piece of paper for goodness sake. Stop annoying us.

ATTACK OF THE BOOKBAGS!
I don't like when I'm on the train and people get on the train with bookbags on their backs and they won't take them off .so every time they turn and twist they hit you in the head or somewhere on your body. People don't realize that a book bag is a extension of their body.they are so focused on their phones they don't even realize the way they move. When you are on a crowded train you need to put your book bag in front of you

Aries Put more energy into your relationships with others. Let people know they are appreciated in order to get the help you need to do things your way.

Taurus Personal changes can be made, but before you jump into something that may be upsetting to others, consider the outcome and the possible consequences. Keep the peace.

Gemini A break will help you recharge and give you the boost you need to finish what you start. Avoid those bearing grudges or looking for a fight.

Cancer Keep your emotions tucked away someplace safe. Your time will be better spent helping others or working with children or creative individuals.

Leo Put more time and effort into taking care of your responsibilities. Bring about positive changes that will enhance your life and please the people who count on you.

Virgo Sign up to learn something new or visit a place that you find relaxing or inspiring. Time spent with a loved one or working on personal growth or fitness is favored.

Libra Own whatever you do. Be proud of who you are and what you stand for. Accomplishment will result if you are accepting of others and true to yourself.

Scorpio Stick to a plan. Refuse to let trivial matters set you off or stand between you and your goal. Stay focused and don't stop until you are satisfied with the results.

Sagittarius An interesting opportunity will develop that can change the way you earn your living or handle your personal finances. Reconnect with a former coworker to brainstorm.

Capricorn Be careful how you phrase your words. Sensitive issues must be handled with diplomacy. Don't expect everyone to agree or to like the decisions you make.

Aquarius Stay strong and don't let anyone interfere in your life. Someone will try to persuade you to take part in indulgent behavior or engage in something that isn't to your benefit.

Pisces Keep your eye on what you want and be willing to accept minor adjustments moving forward. Intelligent compromise will help seal a deal.

Regina King on why we need more female voices in Hollywood

patrick.king@metro.us

Regina King has been an onscreen MVP since she began her career as an actress over 30 years ago. She has shined in a string of amazing supporting roles in shows like "Southland," "The Leftovers" and "American Crime."

King's performance in the anthology series "American Crime" won her two back-to-back Emmys for Best Supporting Actress in a Limited Series. But this year, she nabbed the award for her lead performance in Neflix's intense drama "Seven Seconds" from "The Killing's" Veena Sud. It was a real moment for King and the world to recognize her as a leading actress.

King is also a director. She's directed episodes of "Insecure," "Shameless" and "This Is Us." She has recently partnered with Gillette Venus as a mentor for a campaign called "Her Shot," which aims to bring female directors into the world of marketing, as less than 7 percent of all video content created is created by female directors.

We spoke with King about her Emmy win and why representation is so important in the entertainment industry.

Congrats on the Emmy! This is your third Emmy and first for a lead role for "Seven Seconds." I think I speak for a lot of people when I say you have deserved this kind of lead role for a long time. How did it feel when they called your name?

It felt a bit surreal. I think each one is quite different. But this one, just because of the optics from my perspective, it was a really huge surprise. It felt good. It felt good especially because of the subject matter. Hopefully, the honest part of awards shows is that they were created to bring more eyes to material and storytelling. So my hope is that, because it's on Netflix, this win will bring a whole new group of eyes that may have missed "Seven Seconds" before to check it out.

Aside from acting you have been directing a lot of television. Can you tell us about your new partnership with Gillette Venus' and the "Her Shot" campaign to get more women behind the camera?

Basically, as I was saying, I'm just a champion of hearing more voices that are from different perspectives. By that I mean, the reality is the content that we are consuming is not reflective of the numbers of our human population.

Because that is the case, when I found out that Gillette Venus was creating a space for female creators that would not have had the opportunity to show their content or have a platform for people to even know that they exist and are out there telling stories and creating content — I was excited.

It was kind of a no-brainer for me to partner up with them and kind of be a voice for these 10 women who are so different and so talented. While they are all female, all of their perspectives are different.

That's really the biggest thing that myself and Venus are trying to bring light to. It's not just about the male vs. female. It's that we're missing out on over 50% of fresh voices and fresh perspectives on storytelling and expressing content. For anybody out there that considers themselves an artist or a consumer of art, we're being cheated! We're not getting the opportunity to see all of the art.

This kind of goes hand in hand with the call for more inclusion riders in the entertainment industry.

Absolutely. Whenever you are in a position of power or to create more opportunities, then that's paying it forward. That's the reason humans exist! That's what we're supposed to do. I hope that other companies will see what Gillete Venus is doing and look at this model and follow suit. Just the way they create their products I think is really unique. It shouldn't be unique, but it is. The fact that they are creating them after doing the research on what it is that women need with their hair removal. What would be best for them and applying it into their development of products.

I'll tell you this — from a person who loves shoes — I feel like sometimes there is a man that has never walked in a heel in his life who has made the shoe. It sure is pretty, but it does not feel good! (laughs) I think that is what makes Gillette Venus unique because they are not just creating a product because it is pretty. They've created a product based on researching and talking to women about their needs.

You can learn more about Regina King's involvement with the "Her Shot" campaign and view all the content from these directors by visiting the Gillette Venus Instagram TV hub at Instagram.com/GilletteVenus and using hashtag #HerShotxVenus.

3 Takeaways from Eagles' Week 5 loss to Vikings

In a rematch from last year's NFC title game, the Eagles could not get the job done against the Vikings in a must-win game.

JOVAN ALFORD
jovan.alford@metro.us

After a disappointing overtime loss on the road last week to the Tennessee Titans, the Philadelphia Eagles could not find their mojo in a must-win game, losing 23-21 to the Minnesota Vikings.

Unlike last year's NFC championship game, where the Eagles won going away, this time the Vikings had Philly's number. Minnesota's offense was able to drive the ball up and down the field, while the defense got immense pressure on Eagles quarterback Carson Wentz.

The Eagles showed slight improvements from their performance last week against the Titans, but it was not enough to secure a win. Now with a two-game losing streak, the Eagles have to get ready to play the New York Giants on Thursday night.

Here are three takeaways from the Eagles' first home loss of this season.

1. POOR PASS PROTECTION REARS ITS UGLY HEAD

Since being named the starter last month, quarterback Carson Wentz has not been given great protection by his offensive line. In the last two games, including Sunday's game against the Vikings, Wentz has been sacked 12 times and fumbled three times.

Lane Johnson was beat Sunday by Vikings defensive end Stephen Weatherly and it ended with Wentz losing the ball. The ball landed in the hands of defensive tackle Linval Joseph for a 63-yard fumble return touchdown.

Heading into Sunday's contest, Philly's offensive line had given up 14 sacks with an adjusted sack percentage of 7.7, according to Football Outsiders.

2. SELF-INFLICTED MISTAKES

Along with Wentz's fumble that led to a Vikings score, the Eagles had numerous self-inflicted mistakes throughout the game. The first mistake happened late in the second quarter as defensive end Michael Bennett was called for a questionable roughing the passer penalty.

That penalty gave the Vikings an extra 12 yards and put them closer toward the red zone. From there, quarterback Kirk Cousins capitalized off of the Eagles' mistake and found wide receiver Adam Thielen in the back of the end zone for a touchdown.

Then the second mistake happened early in the third quarter. On the Eagles' first offensive drive of the game, running back Jay Ajayi fumbled the ball inside the red zone.

It was a momentum killer as it appeared that the Eagles were going to get back into the game.

However, Cousins once again capitalized off of Philly's mistake and hit Thielen for a 68-yard pitch and catch. Cornerback Jalen Mills got beat on a double move, which was a constant theme Sunday.

3. WENTZ, SMALLWOOD STAND OUT AS OFFENSIVE MVPS

For all the bad that happened in this game, the Eagles still had an opportunity to win. The two reasons why they had a chance was because of Wentz and running back Wendell Smallwood.

Despite not having solid protection from the offensive line, Wentz still did everything in his power to try to get the Eagles a win. Just like he showed in his debut, the young signal made sure to use his legs to pick yards and extends plays.

Wentz picked up 15 rushing yards, while also completing 68 percent of his passes for 311 yards and two touchdowns.

On the Eagles' first touchdown drive of the game, he threw for 50 yards and found Smallwood for a 12-yard touchdown reception.

The former West Virginia product had six touches for 71 total yards. Until Corey Clement and Darren Sproles are fully healthy, the Eagles have to keep on giving Smallwood the ball and try to commit to the run game.

Anthony Russo's long wait paying off

The 6-foot-4 redshirt sophomore quarterback led Temple to a dominating 49-6 victory over East Carolina.

JON MARKS
sports@metro.us

Anthony Russo didn't mind the wait.

He waited for P.J. Walker to wrap up his Temple career when he watched as a redshirt. The young quarterback also waited while Logan Marchi took over the reins his freshman year for half a season before Frank Nutile replaced him mid-season and guided the Owls to a bowl game for the third straight year.

Then he waited when Nutile got the call to start the season and struggled in home losses to Villanova and Buffalo, before being shelved with a mysterious injury.

Well, Russo is not waiting anymore, throwing for 254 yards and a career-high four touchdowns in Saturday's 49-6 romp over East Carolina in a game that was not as close as the score indicated.

As a result, 3-3 Temple, who are about to begin a brutal schedule against the American Athletic Conference's best, might have a chance to survive.

"I think it is exciting for me," said Russo, who now appears firmly entrenched as the Owls quarterback of the present as well as the future. "It was a little bit of a wait, but that's just what comes with college football. You just have to be ready when your number's called.

"The last couple of years all I wanted to do was prepare as much as I can," he explained. "Learn from the older guys, learn from Frankie and P.J. my freshman year. That way, when I do get that opportunity and my number is called, I am able to step in and do the best that I can."

Since learning just before kickoff that he would be starting at Maryland in Week 3, the kid from Doylestown, Pa., has gotten better by the week. Against East Carolina, who were coming off a win over an Old Dominion team that stunned Virginia Tech the week before, he shrugged off a bad interception on Temple's first possession and proceeded to put on a show.

"That's part of playing the quarterback position," explained Russo, who is now 3-1 since replacing Nutile. "No matter if you have a great play or a bad play you have to move on to the next one. You can't harp on it."

Having been at the helm for a month now, the 6-foot-4 redshirt sophomore with the monster arm admits he's much more at ease.

"I'm definitely more comfortable," said Russo, who threw touchdown passes to Sean Ryan (24 yards), Branden Mack (7), Isaiah Wright (19) and Randle Jones (31). Wright also took a punt 59 yards to the house — the sixth straight game that Temple's defense or special teams have scored a touchdown.

"The first game there was a little bit of a set of nerves," he continued. "Communication with the offensive line in there is great. They're always talking to me about what they see out there.

"And then having Frank on the sidelines as well — someone who's played a bunch of games for us — all that stuff makes my job so much easier," added Russo. "We've got so many guys who can get open and make plays for us. That's a testament to our wide receiver group."

It's also a testament to the fact that Russo has assumed command, clearly the No. 1 option even when graduate senior Nutile gets the go-ahead. With an imposing schedule looming — 2-3 Navy, 5-0 Cincinnati, 5-0 Central Florida, 4-1 Houston and 5-0 South Florida; three of those on the road — the Owls have their work cut out for them.

However, they're confident Russo gives them their best chance.

"He's just settling into his own skin," said offensive coordinator Dave Patenaude.

"Anthony has been able to take over the team more in a leadership role. His confidence has grown and now he's taking first reps."

Of course, Temple will need more than solid quarterback play to win with that grueling schedule. Yet with a running game that racked up 173 yards on the ground — Ryquell Armstead just missing his fifth straight 100-yard game with 91 — and a strong defensive effort that held ECU to 196 total yards and two field goals, the Owls are at least ready to find out.

In fact, they can't wait.

DEPRESSED?

Are you treating your depression with medication?
Are you still feeling depressed?

If so, please call Hassman Research Institute about participating in our research study of an investigational drug for adults with treatment-resistant depression.

Qualified participants must: • Be 18 or older • Be taking prescribed antidepressant medication • Be currently experiencing a depressive episode

Insurance is not required to participate in our study, and all study-related care and study medications are provided at no charge.

Transportation and compensation up to $7,500 for time and travel may be available.

For more information, call toll-free 866-264-4545 or visit HRITrials.com

VICTORY-1

OSTEOARTHRITIS

KNEE PAIN CAN BE DEFEATING

BUT VICTORY CAN BE YOURS.

The VICTORY-1 study is a 52-week clinical trial examining an ultra-purified form of capsaicin - a naturally-occurring compound found in chili peppers - and its potential to provide extended relief from osteoarthritis knee pain with a single local injection. If you are between 40 and 95 years of age, have knee osteoarthritis with moderate to severe pain, and have experienced difficulty managing your knee osteoarthritis pain, you may be eligible to participate. Speak with a member of the staff to learn if the VICTORY-1 study may be an option for you.
